COMMENCEMENT OF THE FREE ACADEMY.

Last evening the Academy of Music was crowded to its densest capacity, on the occasion of the Commercement of the Free Academy. On the stage were seated the members of the Board of Education, the Faculty of the Free Academy, with Prof. Webster at its head, and leading members of the various professions, well known for their active interest in the cause of education in the city.

The exercises commenced at an early hour in the evening, and did not terminate till nearly 11 o'clock. Notwithstanding this prolonged session, there was no apparent flagging of interest on the part of the audience-a fact doubtless to be attributed in no small measure to the presence of Dodworth's Band, which furnished some of their choicest music for the occasion, and were obliged to respond to several encores.

There were twenty-six graduates, of whom eighteen pronounced orations. As a whole, the youthful gradnates acquitted themselves exceedingly well—the ma-Jority of the orations being written with unusual compactness and clearness, and the delivery characterized by freedom, force and earnestness.

RICHARD WARRES, President of the Board of Education, presided.

The Rev. E. H. CHAPIN made an opening prayer. The salutatory address by JOHN P. APPLETON, led off the oratorical exercises of the evening, and was written in the usual style of salutations. The Board of Education was the first subject of salutation; next the Faculty of the institution; and, lastly, the Andience; the ladies, of course, being gallantly awarded more than a moiety. Lack of force in the writing and of energy and distinctness in the delivery, were drawbacks, which the shower of boquets thrown at the feet of the speaker at the close of his oration, did not serve to make less apparent.
"Pointlessness" was the subject chosen by Oscar.

RROWN IRELAND, the second orator. How worthless a needle is without a point, a character without a fixed and positive him, and an oration without some defining and positive him, and an oration without some defining and intelligible point, were the points made and elucidated with commendable success. A rather slow atterance characterized the oration.

"The Founders of our Institution," was the subject of the next oration, by REID SANDERS. A reference to the struggles of the Revolution, combined with alkanged to the struggles of the Revolution, combined with alkanged to the communication was referred to the Committee.

John Massey sent in a bill "for nursing a child," which was referred to the Finance Committee.

the struggles of the Revolution, combined with allusion to the present struggle in Italy for liberty, elicited general cherering from the audience. A glowing tribute to the founders of the Free Academy was the burden of the oration. Earnest delivery and clear articulation marked the effort, and the speaker left the stage bearing an arm-full of bouquets. Honace E. DRESSER pronounced the fourth ora-

Sion. His subject, "The Romance of Religion," was brilliantly written, the thought striking and original, and the delivery excellent. The usual shower of boquets followed its conclusion. The Philosophical and third honorary oration, the subject, "The True Source of Happiness," was next delivered by RICHARD B. ELLIOTT. He successfully showed that integrity and industry were the foundations of happiness. He was interrupted by frequent applause. A note thrown on the reporters' table announced that the speaker was the son of a shoemaker and that through his entire scademic course he had pursued his studies in his father's shop, with the lapstone on his youthful knees. The tumult nons applause and profusion of flowery offerings that greeted his entrance and exit from the stage, were doubtless spontaneous tributes to his industry and

"The Ruling Passion" was the chosen theme of the next oration, by John A. Carolin. He gave an carnest and glowing description of the workings of the ruling passion, as shown in the life of the poet, the philosopher, the man of science, and the devotes of letters. He spoke in a loud, distinct tone, and was wery bappy in his gesticulation.

Asa BIRD GARENER gave the next oration on "The Present." The present state of inventions, literature, religion and politics was alluded to, with closing reference to the present European war. The belief that this war was working out the great liberty problem of the age called out hearty response from the audience. He withdrew from the stage carrying the seventh load of boquets.

The eight honorary cration was delivered by JAMES Ksox. His subject was the "Expulsion of the Moors "from Spain." This well known historical episode in Spanish history was concisely told with an eloquent pertrayal of the results following. He spoke with unusual energy and effect, and received the usual closing

The ninth oration was on "Friendship and its "Literature," by GARDINER SHERMAN. The speaker failed to make himself audible, but he had personal friends who did not fail in their duty to hurl boquets at him at his closing in.

The ethical and fourth honorary oration was delivered by David Parks Fackler on "the Source of Power." He aimed to show that inherent love and pursuit of the noble and true, was the stepping-stone to sucsees in any field of human effort. He was happy in thought, in delivery, and in receiving the smiles and boquets of his friends, "Old Things through New Spectacles," was the subject of the seventh honorary oration, by Solomon I. Wooly. This speech burst through the shackles of Commencement orations, and treated the audience to a sparkling, caustic and witty slashing of the present rule of pedagoguism. The local allusions were happy, and the sharp severity of criticism and censure was warmly appreciated and applauded. A graceful delivery and clear interation added greatly to the

"The Fire-Worshipers," by James A. Staway was the subject of the twelfth oration. Not quite as poetically as by the author of Lalla Rookh, but with a truthfulness and a healthy moral that every one heartily appreciated, did he treat of the subject. He i was interrupted with occasional applause.

God and our Native Lord, by ELIJAN Ar-RB Howland, was the next subject, and industed the course of thought. It was a mini stare Fourth of July effort, and the bursts of patriotic expression elicited barsts of applause, and a closing boquet shower. The speaker acquitted himself well.
"The Framers of the Constitution" was the subject of the fifth honorary cration by ARSOLD TASzaz, and formed a becoming companion to the preceding oration. It was historical of course, patriotic of necessity, and fortunately well and eloqueatly rendered. The "framers" were set in a frame, set off with the stereotype surroundings of the American eagle and the American flag.

"Posthumu's Life" was the subject of the sixth honorary oration, EDWARE A. Wood being the speaker. It was the best speech of the evening. The composition was compact and forcible, and the delivery graceful and energetic.

The Master's Oration was delivered by CHARLES H. PRATT. It was a good old orthodox sermon, minus the length. It was a studied effort, and was

In awarding the prizes to Mr. Dwight, who was the successful competitor in oratory, Mr. Warren made an evident effort to eclipse the oratory of the young gentleman, in a sophomorical address of congratulation. Dr. WEBSTER, in awarding the prize to Mr. Connor, was guilty of no such absurdity.

The Stock market was not so active as of late, and the strength of the last few days was lost. The feeling in the market exhibited great change from yesterday. Some of the recent buyers exhibited a disposition to realize profits, which brought out offers of sellers' options, and the market became very weak. The movement to-day illustrated the opinion we have before expressed that the market has very little outside support, and advances only as long as the bull clique is buying. The weakest stock to-day was Michigan Southern Guaranteed, which sold at the Second Board as low as 231. Some apprehensions are felt that the August interest will be in default. All the Western shares are heavy at lower figures. Central dragged during the day with moderate business, closisg at 74; 275. Pacific mail was in fair demand at 714 2712. The Newton Copper Type Company has declared a semi-annual dividend of 5 P cent, payable on the 20th inst.

The shipments by the Asia to-morrow, it is not expected, will be large; but the five steamers of the week will probably take an aggregate of two millions. The road which has been alluded to as having suffered a loss of $180,000 of its bonds, by falling into bad hands here, is a road leading from Hollidaysburg, Pa., to the Sunbury and Eric road. The parties interested in this read and in the Central Bank of Hollidaysburg are the same, and the Central Bank became embarrassed by the extension of its aid to the read. In order to relieve it, the officers of the read came here to endeavor to negotiate some of its bonds. They fell into the hands of men much shrewder than themselves, and parted with $180 000 of the bonds for $200,000 of the notes of the Southern Back of Georgia, a concern which has had a black mark against it for some time in the respectable Bank Note Reporters. After discovering that the notes were worthless the Road officers endeavored to regain their bonds, but have not yet been able to discover their whereabouts. The certificates of indebtedness issued by the Post-Office Department in anticipation of an appropriation for its expenses by the rext Congress, have appeared in the market. They are selling at about 85. The assignment printed on the certificate ought to be executed as required by the Department, attested by two witnesses and the Postmaster of the place where the assignment is made, and after the pristed form the words "and all interest which may be allowed on the same," ought to be inserted before signing.

The Cincinnati Gazette says:

The late failure of Chamberlain & Co. of Cleveland

The late failure of Chamberlain & Co. of Cleveland is causing a good deal of trouble in Northern Ohio. Several failures have already been announced as the result of that disaster, and The Pupua Register announces another suspension at Urbana, as follows:

"We learn from a citizen of Urbana that the produce and commission house of Musgrove, Wiley & Winslow, failed last Saturday. The liabilities of the firm are supposed to amount to $150,000—failure entire. The house is said to have indorsed largely for the firm of Chamberlain & Co., in the same business, at Cleve land, which has also failed. The assets are said to be sufficient to pay all habilities."

The Cincinnati Enquirer says;

A case was yesterday tried in the Superior Court in which Wm. H. Aspuwall and others were plaintiffs, and the City of Cucinnati defendant. The action was brought by the plaintiffs to recover a balance of $21,000 of the bonds of the city, with interest, which, it was claimed, were originally to have been issued to the Ohio and Mississippi Railroad Company.

Judge Gholson gave judgment for the plaintiffs, and, in doing so, decided that the city had power to contract for the issue of the bonds for the purchase of the wharf property, and also the right to release its right of set-off against the company, as it had in this instance, in consideration of the completion by the plaintiffs of the road. Also, that the city had received the kind of title of wharf property which the original conkind of title of wharf property which the original contract called for. The Court, therefore, gave judgment for $21,000, with back interest, deducting therefrom the price of a small strip of land condemned and paid for. The balance of interest amounts to about $5,000.

It is rumored, says The Washington Examiner, that a party of New-York gentlemen are endeavoring to obtain possession of the Hempfield Railroad, with the intention of finishing it to Greensburg. We learn that negotiations are now in progress in Wheeling, with this end in view.

The Pottsville Miners' Journal of the 16th says: There is a strong feeling among our operators ainst the advance of tolls, etc., on the 1st of July. against the advance the dullest month of the year, by our transporting companies. It is fortunate that freights to the East have receded, otherwise there would have been almost a total stoppage of the trade. As it is, many collieries are stopped, or only partially worked at an expense to the operator; and it is extremely doubtful whether the companies would not have derived more told at the old rates during the mouth of July than they will at the old rates during the month of July than they will at the advanced rates.

"The idea of advancing tolls in the dullest month of the year, at the request of rival companies, who, it is well known, had made sales to early them through this dreaded month at the lower rates, thus giving them the advantage of the market again which they have had since the opening of the trade, has destroyed confidence to such an excent in the management of our operators (who, with a few exceptions, have unfortunately become impoverished to such an extent as to prevent their taking stock is such an improve ment) would solemuly pledge themselves—aye, enter into bords—not to send a tun of coal, des insel for New-York and the East, via Philadelphia, if ampie facilities were produced to send it else where.

The Court of Appeals has decided that the tax levied by the County Court of Peodleton County, to pay the interest on the bonds issued by the county to pay the interest on the bonds issued by the county to the Covington and Lexington Railroad Company, is illegal, and cannot be collected. The law gives the power to levy the tax only on the condition that the question of levying shall be submitted to the voters of the county, and a majority of voters shall have been in favor of the tax. No such question was submitted to the voters of Pendleton County, so far as the record shows, and therefore the levy of the tax cannot be maintained. What effect his decision is to have upon the rights of the bon tholders, or the rights of others not parties to the record, is not determined by the Court.
